RAYS DIVISION SERIES GAMES #1 AND #2 ARE SOLD OUT

ST. PETERSBURG, FL - The Tampa Bay Rays announced tonight that the team's first two home games in the American League Division Series are sold out. The tickets were purchased by fans who participated in the team's Postseason Ticket Opportunity, which allowed fans to register to win the opportunity to purchase tickets in a special online pre-sale.

A very limited number of tickets are available as postseason packages to those who place deposits, starting at just $50, for 2009 full or partial season tickets.

Should the Rays capture the American League East championship, tickets to Home Game 3 would go on sale in the same fashion. Fans are still able to register to win the opportunity to purchase tickets during that pre-sale at raysbaseball.com. While registering, fans are encouraged to "opt-in" for future notifications, ensuring fans will be notified for future ticket on-sales or possible postseason rallies.

Division Series games, dates, and times, are to be determined. Please visit raysbaseball.com for the most updated schedule.

The 2008 postseason ticket packages may be guaranteed by placing deposits, starting at just $50, on 2009 full or partial season ticket plans, and are available at raysbaseball.com or by calling 727-342-5757.

For more information on 2008 postseason tickets please contact the Rays Ticket Office at 888-FAN-RAYS or visit raysbaseball.com.

Fans are also reminded to shop for tickets at Stub Hub-the Official Fan to Fan Ticket Marketplace of the Tampa Bay Rays.
